Welcome...

Dear Gordon Moody Supporter,

Well, we made it into 2021 and we made it in reasonable shape considering the many fast-moving challenges of 2020 and the covid pandemic. Our hard-working and inspiring chair of Gordon Moody Board of Trustees, Lindsey Hayes, takes a look back at 2020 and into 2021 in another item in this newsletter.

I won't repeat the many excellent points she makes and I've also covered a lot of our work and impact throughout 2020 in previous newsletters. In 2021, as in 2020, our work at Gordon Moody with severely addicted gamblers will remain completely focused on helping people reclaim and rebuild their lives free from gambling addiction.

Looking ahead to 2021, however, I feel a huge challenge – a tidal wave of a challenge – around mental health and its impact on society is heading our way.

We will also need to look in 2021 at the wider environment and how to shape it.

Last year I suggested on a number of occasions in the media and elsewhere that we needed to start a national conversation on mental health aimed at removing the stigma around addiction and mental health – particularly relating to gambling.

I feel we are starting to make headway on this and 2021 may offer a great opportunity to progress that conversation further.

The UK government is currently calling for evidence for its review of the 2005 Gambling Act. Gordon Moody will be doing its utmost to influence this enquiry as much as we can, where we can.

Much of the initial ask for evidence takes up how to address technological changes that have had a huge impact since 2005.

Gordon Moody recognises the importance of tackling these issues, but at the same time we know that our core purpose is to provide treatment and support those most severely affected by gambling addiction.

We are particularly looking to inform and influence the case for an expansion of resources to fund more residential treatment capacity. We also will be suggesting that a joined-up public health approach is needed - an approach that moves gambling from being the hidden addiction and establishes a comprehensive referral process that allows people to access the right treatment at the right time.

We've already set out our stall for 2021 by announcing at the end of last year that we will set up a woman's residential treatment centre this coming year. We got some fantastic media coverage around this initiative, but we realise that this step forward is only the tip of the iceberg.

We anticipate a tidal wave of people coming to us for help in 2021 as the full impact of the covid pandemic begins to be felt. Our plans for therefore, put growing our capacity and the quality of treatment to help all those people very much to the fore.

That means embracing change and putting those people who need our help at the centre of that change. And while we will always aim to highlight the impact we can make as a charity, we also want to ensure that our expertise is shared and built upon in away as that brings benefit and does good in wider society.

Take care of each other and stay safe.

Matthew

Talking to our Trustees

Lindsey Hayes is the chair of the Gordon Moody Board of Trustees and 2021 will be her final year as chair after three years in the hot seat. We caught up with her to find out more about her role and the significance of our 50th anniversary.

Why did you choose to become a trustee at Gordon Moody as opposed to another charity or organisation?

Personally, I feel very fortunate that I am able to contribute skills and expertise to the fantastic work of Gordon moody. I was initially a community nurse, and I have always worked with and engaged with a range of individuals and communities among the most deprived areas of London.

I am curious about people, groups and their behaviour and I'm committed to working with those from challenging backgrounds. I followed a teaching, training and development path that led to a counselling and Health Psychology degree.

I strongly believe that through investing in others, including professional development and learning, will ultimately enable greater confidence and strengthen the work of the staff, the teams and the charity as a whole.

How do you see 2021 shaping up?

This year will be my third and last year as Chair and I am expecting it to be a memorable one as we start to plan a series of events to celebrate the success of Gordon Moody over the past 50 years.

While the aims and objectives of our charity have remained pretty constant over the years, other issues have impacted both our work and those with whom we work, those most severely affected gamblers.

Technological changes are just one example of how more people have easier and faster access to online gambling sites. And data from recent reports show that those accessing and becoming addicted to gambling online continues to rise.

It is definitely going to be a year that will have an impact on the services that we provide.

With all the challenges of the past year, what has impressed you?

During this unprecedented time I have been particularly impressed by the flexibility and agility of the staff as they have faced unpredictable circumstances and an ever growing demand for their skills and expertise.

Gordon Moody has risen to this challenge of unprecedented and increasing demand that has come from a more diverse range of individuals, their families and others through successfully growing the outreach and online offer.

This was particularly relevant for those needing our help who were unable to join our residential programme.

What do you think Gordon Moody needs to do more of or start doing from 2021 onwards?

The health and well-being of all those with whom we come in to contact continues to be our highest priority, and the continuing pandemic will mean that we will continue to develop the services that have especially targeted those most in need of our support and help. We know that the numbers of troubled and addicted gamblers will continue to rise because of lockdown.

An organisation such as ours needs to keep evolving and fortunately we have an excellent board of trustees who are all committed to the aims, purpose and vision of the charity and who generously and regularly give their time.

In spite of the abrupt changes to the more traditional ways of working last year, we are embracing new opportunities for communicating effectively and looking at all the opportunities we should be building into our future plans. The changes experienced at GMA last year have definitely focused our minds on reviewing our services, impact and purpose. This is a journey that will continue into this year and for many years to come.

What do you think will be the most challenging thing Gordon Moody faces in 2021?

If we are to respond to the increasing demand for our services we need to ensure that our funding sources are sustainable at every level. While we are very fortunate to receive regular funding we are also in a strong position to attract interest and support for specific projects and developments.

Our aim above all else is to support others and deliver lasting positive change. We cannot do this alone and are acutely aware of the need to strengthen alliances and partnerships and develop long-term relationships and networks.

Where would you like Gordon Moody to be heading by the time you finish your stint as chairman of Trustees

The strength of purpose of Gordon Moody continues to grow and we are more adept at gathering and applying the latest clinical research as well as incorporating learning from our own evidence base, building our unique approach.

One of the challenges for the future is to strengthen our message to others, especially those in the community who are not aware of our work and impact.

We will be using the opportunity to celebrate our success during this 50th anniversary year to focus on these and other issues, to influence others and ensure that we have a positive impact at all levels of the public and private sector and government.

By the end of the year and the end of my role as Chair I anticipate leaving GMA as a strong and sustainable charitable organisation ready for future challenges and opportunities.

World first for women New treatment centre in 2021

2021 will see the opening of Gordon Moody's Women's Treatment Centre. Retreat and Counselling programme manager Jane Fahy talks to us about the thinking behind our decision to create this unique service

Women's Gambling in Numbers

9,000

Women called the national gambling helpline in 2019/20

41%

A need for more women's treatment

Gambling is the hidden addiction and hidden further again within that is the story of women gamblers and women who are affected others. The number of women gambling in the UK has increased significantly in recent years and the vulnerability of women to the effects of problem gambling - directly or indirectly - has increased alongside that.

While the cost to society of men being addicted gamblers is huge, the cost of the impact on women is often greater and wider. Current data shows a growing number of women requiring treatment with gambling associated issues. It is beyond reasonable doubt that women are under-represented in gambling specific treatment. We at Gordon Moody have been addressing this for a number of years now, and we have plans to expand our treatment capacity next year to help urgently deal with this growing challenge in society.

Women and Gambling

"Women are uniquely skilled at keeping it all together while falling apart". Falling apart can be mean them personally because of gambling addiction or, dealing with the impact of it within a relationship or family situation. Keeping it all together can mean many women are reluctant to explore anything other than short-term interventions to help them personally or, it means that other women are asked to shoulder even more of the 'everyday burdens' to support a male family member.

There is also a need to overcome other barriers, firstly there is the issue of perceived stigma and shame of entering a longer-term rehabilitation and secondly there are also very practical questions around safeguarding, childcare and other family 'responsibilities' that can mean that for some they opt to just 'put a toe in the water' when the reality is that they need more extensive and intensive residential therapy treatment in order to turn their lives around.

Overcoming barriers

Our women's retreat and counselling programme received 160 applications for the 36 places available last year. This programme is run three times a year with 12 participants at a time and provides respite, counselling and working alongside others with lived experience to devise an effective programme of treatment that recognises the wider issues surrounding gambling disorder in women. However, while there is growing visibility of women reaching out to us for help there is still work required to ensure that women get the right support, right treatment and right environment to deal with the range of complex issues that need to be tackled in helping them address their gambling disorder.

A new approach

This year we intend to create an evidence based and service-user led centre that provides a residential treatment programme for women severely affected by gambling disorders as well as respite, counselling and support for families of gamblers. We have based our model around the evidence for the need for treatment from our own female service users. Service users will engage with those with lived experience and using the latest research we will devise a programme that effectively recognises the wider issues surrounding gambling disorder in women. Our programme will be inclusive of LGBT and BAME communities as well as other ethnic and minority groups as UK Gambling Commission evidences the prevalence of gambling-related harm to be higher among these groups. We are setting up a residential treatment centre that will initially cater for 24 women with disordered gambling on a yearly basis. Women from ethnic and minority groups will benefit by being able to access support matched to their needs. Friends and families of the affected gambler will also benefit through counselling and we aim to provide support for up to 120 women a year affected by another's gambling. Those working in the sector of problem gambling treatment will benefit from additional data and training that we will make available through regular consultation and a training centre of excellence.

Christmas at Gordon Moody

Residential service managers Mandy Green and David Hollingsworth share what turned out to be very different Christmases in our treatment services. Nevertheless Christmas was marked in true GMA style.

Christmas at GMA

2020 saw for many of us a Christmas like no other and the same can be said here at Gordon Moody. In the past residents would have the option of going home for a few days over the Christmas period but it was decided 2 years ago that GMA would provide its service throughout the festive period. The challenge of being away from home and family is a significant one but by committing to treatment we hope that our residents will be able to re-claim their lives free of gambling addiction and enjoy many Christmas's to come.

Christmas at Dudley

It was a busy service this year at Dudley with residents in treatment and recovery house. Despite having a few less in our care than usual to allow us more space to keep safe from Covid there was a good atmosphere. A tree and decorations were put up cards were made and everyone was in good spirits. A comfort fund provided to support the loved ones of those in our care enabled all our residents to send gifts home and residents were able to speak to their families on Christmas day. There was no danger of anyone going hungry either, with one of our residents being a professional chef we were all treated to a superb Christmas lunch as you can see from the pictures.

Christmas at Beckenham

Christmas came early for the residents this year as they learned in late November that there was a comfort fund to buy gifts for their children / family members who ordinarily wouldn't have received anything from their loved one in treatment. Naturally this went down very well and it was fantastic that GMA was able to facilitate lots of children getting the presents they wanted and the peace of mind this brought our residents.

Fast forward to the Sunday before Christmas and our on site Covid testing kits were called into action after we were alerted to a couple of the residents having flu like symptoms. Two positive tests were returned and all of a sudden our programme had to be delivered virtually. Tough those this was for the four guys in the house they embraced it and quickly adapted to the world of online video calls. Everything including the Art Therapy was able to be delivered and with their food shopping dropped at the door along with their tobacco spirits were kept up. It was a tremendous team effort from staff and residents alike and everyone can be really proud of how the service n kept going through a very trick period.

From our Residents

“Christmas at Gordon Moody was surprisingly nice. We were treated very well, given money to buy our loved ones presents, a big budget for food over the Christmas period. On Christmas day all residents chipped in and did their bit to contribute to the meal and it worked really well, all seven of us enjoyed the meal and the day as much as we could! We were given our phones for quite a long period on the day so we could and did still feel involved with Christmas at home which made it easier. The presents from Gordon Moody were brilliant just to give us all another lift while we were having our dinner. Thank you for everything that the staff did it definitely made the time easier”

“After many years of chaotic, stressful festive periods - I can honestly say that Xmas 2020 at GMA Dudley was a period of peace, laughter and reflection.

I felt part of a therapeutic family - and can only thank all the staff for their generous provision of food, activities, gifts and care. Like most compulsive gamblers, the Christmas period (for me) in the past would involve living beyond my means, a string of promises and stressful living.

Xmas 2020 at GMA was quite the opposite, and as I continue my journey of recovery from a crippling addiction - I felt safe, and optimistic that the future will be do much better than the past.

It was a special time to reflect and connect with fellow residents. Sometimes genuine care and laughter really can be medicine.”

Making a world of difference New website for Gambling Therapy

Gambling Therapy Manager Paul Dent talks about moving forward with technology and how the new Gambling Therapy website will improve the service for millions of users worldwide.

The last six months has been a period of major technological change for Gambling Therapy (GT). The team worked alongside a web development company to completely rewrite the code behind the GT website to run on WordPress – an industry standard content management system. The membership database, site content, groups and forum posts were moved to the new platform with just a few hours of down-time – no mean task. The move gives the team much more flexibility in adjusting site content in-house and sets the stage for exciting future plans for the website.

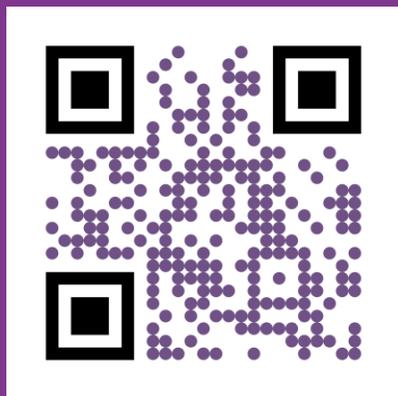

GT well understands the particular challenges of reaching out to a global audience. The new website helps in delivering a lifeline to users whatever their speed of internet connection, browsing device or native language. It is essential that information and support is accessible across a broad range of technology. To that end, a great deal of work has been put into examining site text and graphical content to ensure it is focused, relevant and supportive to gamblers and affected others. The flexibility of WordPress has also allowed rapid development of a new interactive map feature which is undergoing final testing and will soon provide links to local resources around the world.

Around 75% of GT users access the services through their mobile device so ensuring that the site works well on any size and shape of screen has been central to the redevelopment work. The forums have been completely rebuilt with this in mind. Forums are an important of the GT offering – providing gamblers and affected others with an anonymous yet structured way for them to speak out about their personal experiences. Using forums on small mobile devices is often tricky so the team tested many solutions – and continues to explore options for future development.

The multilingual experience offered by GT sets it apart from any other gambling support service in the world. The one-to-one helpline is offered in 160 languages – enabling the team of advisors to converse with people in almost any dialect and to offer gambling support even in countries where gambling is illegal. For many callers a GT advisor may be the first person they have ever spoken to about their gambling – as shame or guilt may have prevented them from speaking to anyone close to them. Talking to one of the experienced advisors, made up of qualified therapists, counsellors and experienced peer support advisors, can help callers manage their distressing feelings and to take important steps towards a life without gambling.

Complementing this one-to-one support GT recognises the power of speaking in a group – and is investing in new multilingual group software that will offer real-time text translation to group members. By early spring GT is set to run a selection of groups facilitated by therapists native in Italian, Spanish, Polish, Russian, Punjab, Urdu, French, Portuguese/Brazilian and Arabic, and will run translated groups for German and Turkish speakers. The new provision of groups will be a particularly significant step forwards for countries where there are few or no resources for problem gambling.

GT in numbers.....

- Over 5 Million hits worldwide
- Over 18,000 helpline calls
- 160 languages available

My Story

We caught up with Andrew a former resident at Gordon Moody back in 2018 who has just marked 3 years gambling free. We spoke about his experiences of treatment and recovery.

How are you Andrew?

Fantastic, it's my day off today I get Sundays and Monday's off. It's a debt day today I made sure all my finances were up to date there is money in the bank and savings too. This is the beauty of recovery or recovering, I never use the word recovered as I will always be in recovery. It's actually 3 years and 1 month today and my whole mindset has changed, I am more positive, more responsible. I have a normal life now but I am in recovery and I'm proud to say I'm in recovery. Gordon Moody gave me the ability to tackle my gambling problem.

What was life like for you before Gordon Moody?

It was toxic, my life was hell before. I was like a magnet to the bookies and fixed odds betting terminals, I would go everyday spending £500 - £600 whatever I had. If I won I wouldn't go to work I would go to the casino and lose it in the same night. It was just a really bad mindset being a compulsive gambler. I tried to tackle it years ago but I think I was too much in denial. There was businesses lost, friends lost, relationships lost and I had lost myself. All the lies, the deceit, cutting corners to make money, ignoring letters, I was ignoring life basically. I was just in one zone for years and years I just couldn't get myself out of it. Maybe I wasn't ready, I asked that question to myself why couldn't I do it sooner? The answer to that is I wasn't ready at that time, my time was 3 years ago, to be ready, to tackle my gambling problem. But the past is the past, I've accepted it, I've accepted responsibility. That was a big thing for me to accept responsibility and over time begin to mend myself, to get my soul back, to get my life back. Gradually as time goes on I'm getting my trust back from my family, my love, my respect from others and my self respect. I'm very proud of that to get that back, they are priceless assets to have.

How did you find Gordon Moody, and what was your experience of Treatment?

My friend was a police officer, I told her all about it and bless her she went and did some research and she found Gordon Moody. She printed out all the application forms and she came in to the chip shop I had at the time and she gave them to me. My mindset at the time was very different and I remember looking at the forms and I just couldn't fill them in. A customer came in that I knew and she knew about my problem and I told her I had these application forms and she said give them to me Andrew and I'll go fill them in for you, and I'll bring them back with an envelope and a stamp for you and that was the start of my journey, my recovery because of that customer. Bless her, she went home, filled it in for me and all I had to do was sign it and she made sure I signed it, she put it in an envelope and posted it. I had to wait, there was a waiting list but that's how I got in to Gordon Moody. That was the start of big change, change in my personality, change in my mindset and to be able to explore my past and move forward from it. I've learnt a lot of things from Gordon Moody. I wanted to change my life it was either that or suicide. I never had suicidal thoughts, I just thought what is the point? What is the point being here if I'm like this? There is no point having a business, no point having a life, there is no point. In the first couple of weeks (assessment) in Gordon Moody the main thing was that I felt protected from gambling. In the first 8 weeks of treatment I couldn't open up, I couldn't talk it was very very hard after 25 years of solid compulsive gambling it was so hard for my to talk, to relate, I couldn't describe my emotions because of so many years of gambling they were so suppressed. I couldn't describe them, I couldn't feel what I was feeling, I couldn't say what I was feeling. Obviously everyone is different and everyone has a different path to recovery, their journey. One day I got refused for the recovery house (Gordon Moody provides recovery housing for those that have completed treatment but are still not ready for fully independent living) and that was a big moment for me, that was a massive moment. It made me think more, it made me think why am I getting refused and from that day the last 4 weeks in Gordon Moody was the key for me. I think getting refused for the recovery house was key it helped me to be more open minded, put more effort in. And that's what happened, the last 4 weeks was the key time for me and I finished treatment which I was very proud of.

I was a lucky person to see John (a former therapist at Gordon Moody) at work, he was very passionate about his work I still remember his words, “deal with it responsibly, if you have a bad day deal with it responsibly” he was fantastic, Sandra was my therapist she was fantastic and in those last 4 weeks I started to open up and understand myself more. I made good friends there who I kept in contact with and I wish them all the best. I felt lucky not to relapse, there were hard times when I was outside, when I’d finished in the house and was back to reality it was very hard. I kept in touch with Dave the outreach worker and we spoke probably once a week for the first year and a half to help me understand what I was thinking, to understand the triggers, the urges and what to do about it if I have a bad day. I’ve learnt valuable techniques and I’ve moved forward quite positively. The urges now, the urges and triggers have faded away because I wanted a better life and I have a better life.

You have just marked 3 years free of Gambling, What does that mean to you?

I’m very proud of it, it means a lot to me. I’ve changed my mindset, I’ve changed my personality, I’ve changed my prospects in life and I’ve changed my journey. People thought I was crazy when I was gambling but I knew I wasn’t crazy, it was just that I couldn’t stop. I couldn’t stop gambling. It means a lot to me to be gambling free and I’ve used my experience to help others at GA (Gamblers Anonymous). I would like to stay like this for many years to come but you never know what is round the corner and you have to take it day by day.

Thank you so much for talking to us Andrew, finally what advice would you give to anyone in need of help?

My advice would be to reach out for help. If you think you have a gambling problem you need to do everything you can to reach out for help. You have to work very hard on yourself, keep taking, get as much advice as you can. Don’t be in denial accept you have a problem, reach out for help and take it from there.

What happens next?

Once we have received your application we will be in touch with you to arrange a phone assessment. We aim to get in touch with people within 48 hours of receiving an application, don't worry if you miss a call from us we will try various ways to get in touch with you providing you have given us permission to do so, you can also enquire about the status of your application by getting in touch with us by phone. Email or text. If you no longer wish to be considered for treatment let us know and we will leave things there. You can always apply again if things change there is no limit on the amount of times you can apply.

How is my application assessed?

The first stage of assessment will be a needs and safety questionnaire which we will complete with you over the phone. This takes around 45 minutes and helps us to understand more about your situation and, as you may be coming to stay in one of our residential centers it is important to understand any special needs and/or requirements you may have. Once the phone assessment is completed your application will be passed to our referral panel for consideration. Whilst our treatment services may not be suitable for everyone we work with a number of different providers such as Gamcare and the NHS and our referral team will find treatment options to suit your needs.

Will I have to wait for treatment?

Yes, there is a wait for treatment but if you are accepted onto one of our programmes then you will be assigned a therapist who will provide pre-treatment support until a place becomes available or one of our retreat and counselling programmes begin. In pre-support you will be able to access emotional support as well as being able to ask any questions you may have ensuring that when a place becomes available you are committed and ready to begin treatment.

You are not alone, if you are suffering from gambling harm or are affected by a loved one's gambling get in touch.

Let's tackle gambling addiction together.

Gordon Moody

Hi all,

I just wanted to thank you all for everything you have done for me. The group has been amazing and I hope to keep in touch with the others. We have shared so much and seem to understand each other. It would have been understandable if you cancelled the group with so many dropping out at the start so I appreciate that you all kept it going.

Until I started this programme I thought gambling was a financial problem and it is only from the work we have done that I can understand that isn't the case and knowing why I gambled is so important to ensure I don't do it again.

The group was very emotional for me and I will remember my 'rock bottom' and how I felt as another block in place to stop being becoming complacent and going back to it.

I am looking forward to a gamble free future and I have already noticed a positive difference to my life in just 5 months gambling free.

So thank you again and I hope you all have a great Christmas and New Year.

"Everyone of you have played a part in my recovery. Thank You."

"All the staff have been really helpful and I can honestly say I'm glad that I'm here."

"I'm leaving a changed man, I can budget my own money without the urge to gamble."

"This programme has made me discover myself, the good and the bad."

"I am so grateful that there is a targeted intervention for women gamblers as I would still be on the road to destruction if this hadn't existed."

"Gordon Moody saved my life."
